Why I Love Trees

In my life, my family owns LOADS of cows. They roam the mountains in the spring and summer, and stay in our feedlot in the fall and winter.

In the spring and summer, trees and springs, both parts of the forests, are very important to me, and the cows. They are important to both of us because, well.... Let's start with the cows. They have shelter for when it is rainy or snowy. They keep us healthy because... if we didn't have trees, then there would be no oxygen, so, that is pretty important to both of us! Our generation of cow farming has been going for 100 years.

Now, imagine a world without trees!? I would really miss them! I think trees are awesome because you can climb them, carve them, and if there were no trees at my house, then I couldn't swing on my favorite tire swing.

Now I am going to tell you some tree facts....

- Did you know that a single tree can consume 100 gallons of water within a day or two?
- Did you know that a "moon tree" was planted by seeds that were taken to the moon in early 1971.

All of these reasons are why I think we need trees in our life! They are fun, exciting, and darling, all at the same time. And I love them with all of my heart. Also, the cows would be pretty sad if there weren't any more trees.
